PROBATION

You are hereby sentenced to probation for a term of :

One (1) year. The defendant shall remain at his residence with radio frequency electronically monitored curfew every day for a period of six (6) months, on a curfew schedule as directed by the probation officer. During this time, the defendant shall comply with the rules of the location monitoring program, shall maintain a telephone without any special features at his place of residence, and shall pay the daily cost of the location monitoring.

In determining this sentence, I have considered the Sentencing Guidelines as well as the purpose of Title 18 U.S.C. §3553(a) namely - (1) the nature and circumstances of the offense and the history and characteristics of the defendant; (2) the need for the sentence I impose (A) to reflect the seriousness of the offense, to promote respect for the law and the provide just punishment of the offense; (B) to afford adequate deterrence to criminal conduct; C) to protect the public from further crimes of the defendant; and (D) to provide the defendant with needed educational or vocational training, medical care, or other correctional treatment in the most effective manner; (3) the need to avoid unwarranted sentence disparities among defendants with similar records who have been found guilty of similar conduct; and (4) the need to provide restitution to any victims of the offense. Moreover, I find the sentence imposed is reasonable.

You can appeal your conviction if you believe that your guilty plea was somehow unlawful or involuntary, or if there is some other fundamental defect in the proceedings that was not waived by your guilty plea. You also have a statutory right to appeal your sentence under certain circumstances, particularly if you think the sentence is contrary to law. However, a defendant may waive those rights as part of a plea agreement, and you have entered into a plea agreement, and you have entered into a plea agreement which waives some or all of your rights to appeal the sentence itself. Such waivers are generally enforceable, but if you believe the waiver is unenforceable, you can present that theory to the appellate court. With few exceptions, any notice of appeal must be filed within 14 days after the sentence is imposed on you.

If you are unable to pay the cost of an appeal, you may appeal for leave to appeal in forma pauperis. If you so request, the Clerk of the Court will prepare and file a notice of appeal on your behalf.

14. You must notify the court of any material change in your economic circumstances that might affect your ability to pay restitution, fines, or special assessments.
